ASHLEY ECHOLS

Email: ashleyne92@gmail.com | Website: anechol.github.io | GitHub: github.com/anechol

Front End Web Developer who blurs the line between technology and art. Based on past work experience, excels at working in team-based environments and looks forward to learning best practices and new material from mentors and peers alike.

Skills

Languages

HTML5, CSS3 (Sass), JavaScript (React, Node)

Expertise

- Ability to hand-code or build sites using frameworks such as Bootstrap.
- Capable of using Git and Git Flow for version control.
- Manage and organize projects using tools such as Gulp and Webpack.
- Eager to learn and experiment with new front-end technologies.
- Experience collaborating with other developers in heavily team-based environments.

Work Experience

Freelance   June 2018 - present

Freelance Web Developer

- Utilized WordPress and PHP to provide a digital solution to a small non-profit organization.
- Collaborated and negotiated with client to ensure needs for project are met.

Leo Burnett Worldwide   Sept. 2017 - Dec. 2018

Associate Web Developer

- Contributed to a variety of client projects including Allstate, Intel, Kellogg's, The Field Museum, and Dunkin'.
- Experienced in working in Agile environments.
- Exposed to a variety of front-end technologies, including React, Angular, Vue, and WordPress.
- Interviewed and screened intern- and junior-level candidates.

Web Developer Intern   June 2017 - Sept. 2017

- Converted wireframes and designs into fully functioning applications.
- Learned and used React to build applications for clients.
- Worked with strategists and art directors to concept final intern project.

Education

Illinois State University   2010-2014

B.S. Psychology